A DESCRIPTION of the Ciuill VVarres OF ENGLAND.

IN this Platforme are contained (gentle Reader) the feuerall battels fought by Sea and Land, at seuerall times and in seuerall places of England and Ireland, and the parts adioyning, within these fiue hundred yeeres last past. Description of pictures after the manner of fight, as the plot will giue roomth I haue placed, and in the margent by numbers marked, obseruing the time, yeere, and euent of euery battel, which being performed by me in satisfaction of the honorable desire of certain Martial Gentlemen professors of Armes, & louers of learning, were desirous to see these mixtures of matters of their owne profession, and the passed proceedings of their owne countries affaires, and desired me with my poore labour to further so good a worke: which being finished in large with the liking of the motioners, and good allowance of her Maiestie, to whose sacred person it was commended, and there contented to haue rested. The counterfeir whereof notwithstanding much lessened and more badly performed, hath since come forth in print, either through the greedy desire of gaine (the bane of all good proceedings) or the gainsaying mindes of such as are enuious to others pains, lest their owne profit thereby be empayred, whose barren inuentions must be supported by other mens endeuours, and their shallow conceites carried through the currants of others springs otherwise runne they from little to nothing.

The silence of Englands ciuill wars I could haue wished, being the markes of our owne infamies, and staines to be washed away rather with repentance, then againe to be renewed by remembrance: had not these drawne my paines to their owne headlesse inuentions, and shot my shafts from their owne Bowes: for lucre making common that, which in priuate and for great Estates I intended: and by their indirect meanes am inforced to bring mine owne (yet much abridged) to the Presse. Wherein if it so fall out, as that this my endeauour doe yeeld contentment to them which hitherto haue allowed my labours, I meane in time to come (if God permit) to second the same with another plot of other Warres, performed by Englishmen in other Countries, against others and forraine forces: a matter of more honour to our Country and pleasure to our Countreymen, in regard the

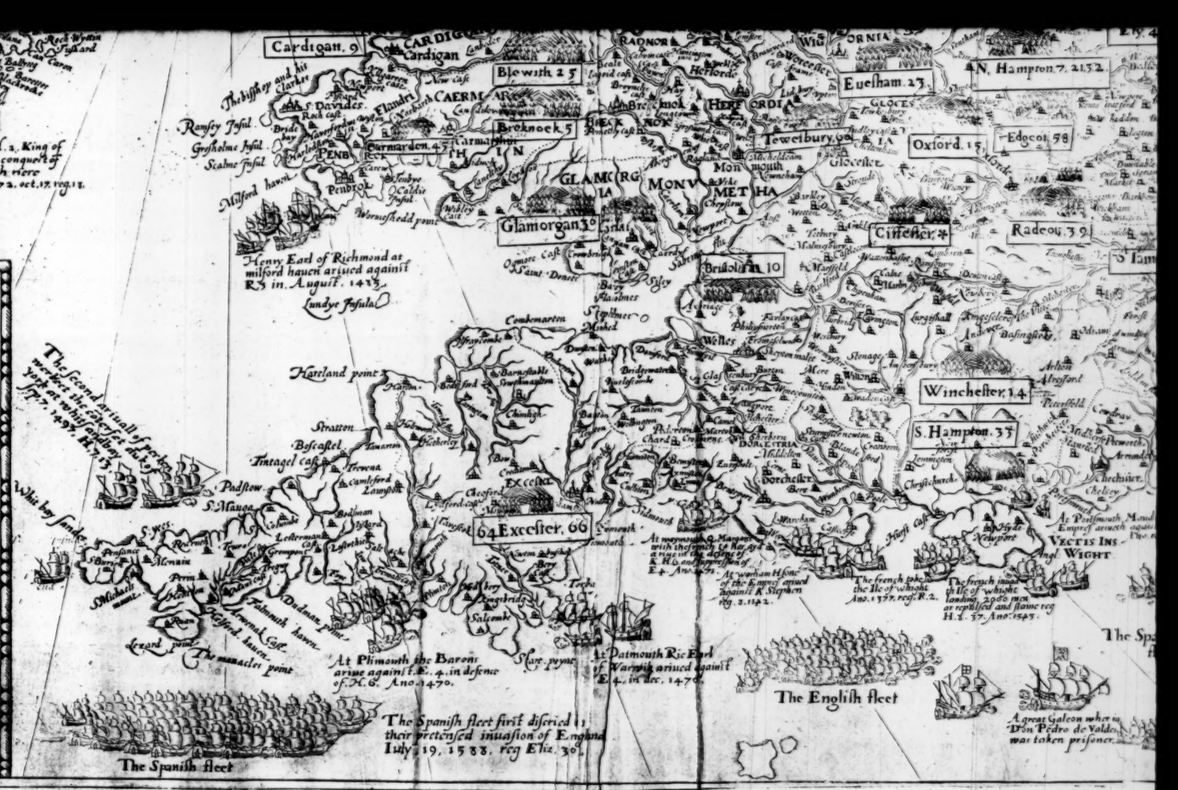
14) Tyrone in his rebellions against her sacred Maiestie, hath ouerlong troubled the peace of Ireland, but chiefly the Prouince of Vlster, whose treacherous acts and sauage cruelties hath moued her Highnesse to send forces thitherward, for whose prosperous successe, with the ouerthrow of all treasons and rebellions, let all true hearted Subiects pray.



argument, to proceede to some particulars, it shall not be amisse to make some diuision of them, according to their seuerall qualities, of the seuerall quarrels in them which are found to be diuers, and of three seuerall natures. Whereof the first were the inuasions attempted by forraine Princes, and enemies against the Kings and people of this Realme. The second were meere rebellions of Subiects against their annointed Princes. And the third dissensious factions betwixt Princes of the blood Royall: of these three, all these effusions of blood haue consisted.

And to begin with the first battell in this plot, which was the first beginning of gouernement of this state as it yet continueth. Such was the attempt of William Duke of Normandy against King Harold the sonne of Earle Goodwin, who preuailed so against him in fight at Battaile in Suſſex (a place so called by this euent) as the said Duke was afterward King of this Land, and brought the whole nation vnder his obedience, as it hath beene continued to his posterity euer since. Such was the arriuall of Lewes sonne and heyre to Philip King of France against John King of England, who being carried by his owne ambition, accompanied with French forces, and assisted by the rebellious Barons of this Realme, after variable fortune of fight in seuerall skirmishes, battels, and assaults, was forced in the end, without all honour, or hope to preuaile, to make a very shameful retreat into his own country.

Such was also the entrie made by Iames the fourth King of Scots, against King Henry the eight of famous memory, his brother in law, and sworne allie, at that time absent in the wars of France, who contrary to his oath and alliance formerly made, entered the North frontires of England, with a mighty Army, had the same discomfited and ouerthrowne, and was himselfe slain in the field by the English forces, vnder the leading of the Earle of Surrey, at that time Lieutenant generall for King Henry. And especially such was the late enterprise remaining fresh in memory, of Phillip late King of Spaine, against our dread Soueraigne Lady now raigning, in the yeere of our Lord 1588. attempting by his inuincible Nauy as he thought, and so termed, vnder the conduct of the Duke of Medina Celi, which with great pride and cruelty entended against vs, arriued on our coasts to Englands inuasion and subuersion, had yet neuertheless here in the narrow Seas, the one part of his Fleet discomfited, taken, and drowned, and the other part forced to their great shame in poore estate to make a fearefull and miserable flight about the coast of Ireland homeward, so that of 158. great ships furnished for warre, came to their owne coast of Spaine but few, and those so torn and beaten by the English Cannons, that it was thought they were vnseruiceable for euer, and eleuen of their ensignes or banners of Idolatry, prepared for triumph and pride in conquest, were contrariwise to their shame and dishonour shewed at Pauls-Crosse, and in other places of this Realme, to Gods glory, our ioy, and their endlesse infamy.

The second sort of quarrels in these wars, were meere rebellions of subiects against their annointed Princes and Gouernors: and of these some haue been priuate, and some generall. Of the first kinde for priuate occasions, was that of Thomas Earle of Lancaster, against King Edward the second his cosin-germane, vpon mislike of the Spencers, greatly fauoured by the King, and as much enuied of him, who hauing his forces defeated at Burrowbridge, was there taken prisoner, & but after beheaded at Pomfret. Of the same kind was that of Henry Lord Percie, surnamed Hot spurre, & Thomas Percie Earle of Worcester his Vncle, against K. Henry the fourth, at Shrewesbury; where the said Lord Henry was slaine, and the other taken prisoner, and after beheaded in the same towne. So was that of Michaell Joseph the black-smith in Cornwal and his company, against King Henry the seauenth, for a Subsidie granted in Parliament to the same King, who gathered a head of rebellion so strong, that at Black-heath neare London, they abode battell against their Soueraigne, and were there taken, and afterward drawne, headed and quartered at Tiburne. Also such was that of Robert Ket the Tanner of Windham in Norfolk, against Edward the sixt, pretended against inclosures and liberty to the weale publike, was at Norwich taken in the field, and afterward hanged on the top of the castle of the same towne. And lastly, so was that of

Cities at home, with ting of the territories in subiection vnto vs by iust title of inheritance and conquest abroad. And in all of them representing vnto vs the lamentable stories of the times fore-passed and gone, to compare with the same the peaceable estate of the happy times possest and present, wherein Martiall men haue leasure to winne honour abroad, the rest to liue in quiet and wealth at home, all factions forgotten, and all rebellions surceased and repressed: and for these blessings to yeelde due thankes vnto Almighty God, that hath prouided for vs such a Prince, and so directed her in her gouernement ouer vs, that with ease and pleasure we may both behold the one, and enioy the other, especially in these dangerous dayes of these latter times, when all hostility and outrage of ciuill warres, broiles, and dissentions, haue seemed by the power of the Almighty hand of God stretched forth in our defence, to haue beene transported out of this Iland ouer the Seas into other Countryes, insomuch as notwithstanding this calme security of our owne at home, our neighbour-Nations of all sides abroad, either tho-row the licentious tyranny of vngod-ly Princes, that haue laid persecution vpon their Subiects, or the mutinous dissentions of disobedient people, that haue raised Rebellions against their Princes, haue been so turmoyled with garboyle of warres, as they haue beene pittifully enforced to pray and seeke ayde at her Maiesties hands, and to submit themselues vnder the protection of her, whom with vs they acknowledge to be the very defendresse of the Christian Faith and Peace, and the most naturall Nurse of the true Church of GOD. By all loyall duty therefore, wee are indebted to yeeld obedience vnto her Maiestie, and to her Maiesties most religious gouerne-ment, by whom wee haue receiued such peace as the World doth admire, and following ages to her eternall fame shall record: and with faithfull hearts pray, that peace may euer dwell within her wals, and prosperity abide within her Pallaces, and that the abundance of her peace may continue so long as the Sun and Moone endureth.

Cease ciuill broyles, O Englands subiects cease, with streames of blood staine this faire Isyle no more:
As God, so Kings must be obeyd with peace, Yeeld thou thy due, to them their right restore:
Wash with repentance, these thine ills before: Giue loyall pledge, with might resist her foes, That raignes thy Prince, to her thy Sword belongs.

ame to and some generall. Of the first kinde for priuate occaso torn sions, was that of Thomas Earle of Lancaster, against it was King Edward the second his cosin-germane, vpon eleuen mislike of the Spencers, greatly fauoured by the King, red for and as much enuied of him, who hauing his forces de-wise to feated at Burrowbridge, was there taken prisoner, & Crosse, after beheaded at Pomfret. Of the same kind was that s glory, of Henry Lord Percie, surnamed Hot spurre, & Thomas Percie Earle of Worcester his Vncle, against K. Henry re meer the fourth, at Shrewesbury; where the said Lord Hen- Princes ry was slaine, and the other taken prisoner, and after priuate, beheaded in the same towne. So was that of Michaell Ioseph the black-smith in Cornwal and his company, against King Henry the seauenth, for a Subsidie granted in Parliament to the same King, who gathered a head of rebellion so strong, that at Black-heath neare London, they abode battell against their Soueraigne, but were there taken, and afterward drawne, headed and quartered at Tiburne. Also such was that of Re- bert Ket the Tanner of Windham in Norfolk, against King Edward the sixt, pretended against inclosures and liberty to the weale publike, was at Norwich taken in the field, and afterward hanged on the top of the castle of the same towne. And lastly, so was that of Sir Thomas Wiat and the Kentishmen against Queen Mary for the bringing in of Phillip of Spaine, they being cut off at S. Iames, & himself yeelded at the Court.
Of the latter sort of Rebellions being generall, were those of the Barons against King Iohn, & King Henry the third his son, in their seuerall raignes. Against the father, in bringing in of forraine powers, & working a resignation of the Crowne & Diadem, to the great blemish of their King & Kingdome. And against the son so prosecuted their attempts, that their warres to this day are called and knowne by the name of the Barons-wars, which had so lamentable consequence, as that after the ouerthrow & consummation of sundry most noble and ancient houses of England, and both parties wearied with warres: the conclusions of peace which ensued are reported in regard of the precedent murthers to be written with bloud.

The third sort of these quarrels in these Ciuil-wars and dissentions, were factious dissentions betweene Princes themselues of the blood Royall, ambitiously aspiring the Crowne of this Kingdome, and titles of Kings thereof: Of which kinde there haue been two most notable knowne amongst vs. The first fell betwixt Stephen of Bloyse, Erle of Bolloigne, wrongfully succeeding his vncle king Henry the first, in the Crowne of England, on the one party, and Maude the Empresse, Daughter and sole heire to the said King Henry, and Henry Duke of Normandie (his sonne and heyre, who afterward succeeded the same K. Stephen) on the other part, which was followed with such variable successe of fortune in many conflicts on both parts, that King Stephen himselfe was taken prisoner, & laid in irons, with extremity vsed, and the Empresse to saue her life dangerously aduentured thorow the Scouts of the
